A MESSAGE FROM YOUR PRESIDENT

Liebe Mitglieder - Dear Members,

Culture is an important factor in everyone's life. In order to keep it alive, doing your part to preserve it is extremely necessary.

In other words, they are traditions and beliefs chosen by your ancestors and passed on down the family tree to you through birth. Even if you don't practice these traditions they are still part of you and where you came from, often referred to as ones "roots".

The best way to preserve your cultural heritage is to share it with others. Sharing your cultural heritage helps to enrich the lives of others through the gift of discovering diversity. The importance of preserving our own German cultural heritage escalates with each passing decade. Globalization poses the biggest threat to indigenous knowledge and culture. As more money, goods, and people cross borders, it becomes harder to maintain traditional cultural expressions. This is true of the Delaware Saengerbund as well.

The Delaware Saengerbund, 161 years old and one of the oldest continuous cultural organizations in the U.S. is one of the best ways to ensure our heritage and probably one of the best ways to educate others. As time goes on and people move from one country to the next or become too busy to reflect on their roots, the more it is at risk for endangerment.

It is our responsibility to keep our history intact for tomorrow's children so they have the same opportunities to learn about the past and their own roots as we have. At a time when we are all striving to be one people and minimize our differences from each other for the sake of unity, we also need to understand the cultural heritage of other people and help each other celebrate our own uniqueness.

We have many things to offer at the Delaware Saengerbund to help you celebrate your German heritage. Come out and participate, help us to help you know and preserve your cultural uniqueness.

Mit freundlichen Grüßen,

Norma Grieb

Die Physiker – The Physicists

A satirical play by Swiss playwright Friedrich Dürrenmatt

The central figures of the play are three men living in a mental institution who pretend to be insane. One claims to be Albert Einstein, the second Isaac Newton. The third, Johann Wilhelm Moebius, has discovered the “World Formula”, but is now worried that his discovery, in the wrong hands, could result in the destruction of humankind. Trying to evade his own inventions, he feigns insanity by pretending that King Solomon appears and speaks to him, and thus can avoid misuse of his revolutionary discovery. “Newton” and “Einstein”, however, are really agents of opposing secret services and have only entered the mental institution to steal Moebius’ formula to use it for their own country’s purposes.

The “physicists” are compelled to kill their three nurse attendants out of fear that the secret will be revealed. When the police arrive to investigate, Moebius destroys the formula. He persuades his colleagues to keep their dangerous knowledge a secret so that the world will be saved. But it is too late for that!

To find out how the story ends, come to the performance of the Elmshorn Theater Group on Sunday, April 27 at 2:00 pm in the Deutsche Halle. Note: The play will be presented in German.

Iris Richardson, a teacher in the Deutsche Schule has won the IACP (International Assoc. of Culinary Professionals) Food Photographer of the year for 2014.

Food has played an intricate part early in Iris Richardson's life. She started her culinary career as a chef apprentice in Germany. There she trained under many well established chefs. As a chef she sought out some of the most beautiful resort towns and hotels in Europe: a charming small establishment in Garmisch- Partenkirchen, Bavaria, and grand five star hotels in Davos and Interlaken, Switzerland. Today she lives right outside Philadelphia photographing what she loves best, Food. When she is not photographing in her studio or on location you will find her outside in her large garden taking pictures of nature's bounty.
